Whitpain firm has 25 lawyers receive honors

For The Times Herald

Elliott Greenleaf, a law firm headquartered in Whitpain, was recognized in a confidential poll of 35,000 lawyers for having 25 of its lawyers in the top 5 percent of their profession as Pennsylvania SuperLawyers or as "Rising Stars" of the Pennsylvania Bar.

Elliott Greenleaf's awards include the naming of three of its attorneys as Top 100 Lawyers in the Philadelphia area, including the firm's chairman and CEO John M. Elliott, Charles J. Meyer and Dean R. Phillips, as well as attorneys Elliott and Phillips being recognized as Top 100 lawyers in Pennsylvania.

In addition, the firm received the unique recognition of having 13 of its lawyers recognized as being in the top 5 percent of the profession: Kevin S. Anderson, John M. Elliott, Thomas J. Elliott, Stewart J. Greenleaf, Mark A. Kearney, Charles J. Meyer, Timothy T. Myers, Dean R. Phillips, Frederick P. Santarelli, Mark J. Schwemler, Henry F. Siedzikowski, William R. Balaban and John G. Dean. These attorneys, along with the other members of the firm, practice business litigation, corporate law, employment law, appellate matters, administrative law, family law and general litigation.

In addition, a poll of Pennsylvania senior lawyers also honored twelve of Elliott Greenleaf's "under 40" lawyers as "Pennsylvania Rising Star" lawyers: Carol L. Cornelison, Colin D. Dougherty, Brian R. Elias, John P. Elliott, Stewart J. Greenleaf, Jr., Roger J. Harrington, Colin J. O'Boyle, Matthew D. Coble, Shanna K. Williamson, Joel M. Wolff, Mark W. Bufalino and Joseph J. Joyce III. With 25 attorneys (representing almost half of its firm) recognized for state-wide honors by their peers, including three of the Top 100 lawyers in the Philadelphia area, Elliott Greenleaf has the highest number of honored lawyers for its size and practice area of any law firm in Pennsylvania.
